

MILK PRODUCERS FILE THEIR BILLS

One Hundred and Fifty Milkmen Attend Meeting at Court House.

HEAR THREE SPEAKERS

H. D. Allebaugh Says His Organization is Working to Keep up Market For Adams County Product.

One hundred and fifty members of the Adams County Dairy Association and creditors of the defunct Pennsylvania Milk Products' Company, of Harrisburg, met at the Court House on Wednesday evening and filed and proved claims against the bankrupt concern, which is said to be indebted to Adams county milk producers to the extent of $60,000.

In addition to the proving and filing of claims against the bankrupt company, the milk producers heard talks by H. D. Allebaugh, president of the Interstate Milk Producers' Association; R. H. Olmstead, extension dairy specialist of State College; and W. H. Harper, of the Philadelphia Dairy Council.

After attending to the matter of proving and filing claims through J. L. Williams, Esq., the meeting was opened by John C. Bream, of near Gettysburg, who introduced Mr. Allebaugh. The latter explained in detail how matters had led up to the bankruptcy of the Pennsylvania Milk Products' Company. He declared that the Interstate Milk Producers' Association was doing everything in its power to help the farmers by keeping in close touch with the situation, at the same time endeavoring to maintain a future market for Adams county milk through the Harrisburg plant.

Mr. Olmstead, who followed Mr. Allebaugh, urged the milkmen to keep up their spirits and begin to plan for the future. He emphasized the importance of eliminating the "boarder" cow, adding that the cow should be considered a market for feed produced on the farm.

He stated the importance of growing more protein feed on the farm and the advantages of home mixed foods. He declared that Adams county stood with less average milk production per cow than the average for the state, citing figures to show that this county stands sixty-fifth in the amount produced per cow in the state.

Mr. Olmstead is in the county conducting a series of dairy feeding meetings on leading dairy farms. These meetings, although poorly attended because of the almost impassable condition of the by-roads, are worth while, according to persons who have been present at them.

Mr. Harper of the Philadelphia Dairy Council, explained the work being done in advertising milk as a food, and explained where the money taken off the farmers' milk checks is being used. With three reels of moving pictures, he explained the many benefits to be derived from advertising milk and the results accruing from the health work being conducted in public schools.

Washington's Birthday To Be Only Indifferently Observed

Postal Workers and Court House Officials Keep Holiday; Factories and Stores Remain Open as Usual; Flags in Evidence.

Friday, while considered unlucky from some points of view, will be lucky for numbers of persons in Gettysburg and through the county, by virtue of the fact that it is the anniversary of the birth of Washington, first president of the United States.

February 22, as a legal holiday in most states of the Union, will be observed by all of the banks and by offices in the Court House.

The Post Office observes holiday hours, no mail carriers taking their routes during the day, either in the city or through the county. One early collection will be made in Gettysburg, and mails will be received and dispatched as usual. While the lobby of the Post Office will be open, stamp, registry and other windows remain closed throughout the day.

Stores, however, continue to do business as usual, as do most of the factories and plants of town, including the furniture factories and silk mill.

RADIO PROGRAMS ARE BROKEN UP

Local Buzzing, Cracking and Banging Literally "Makes
the Welkin Ring."

Radio in Gettysburg is "on the bum."

This was the universal complaint heard on the streets this morning wherever radio "fans" got together to talk things over.

For, starting with late Tuesday night, the air has been filled with an electrical disturbance which is picked up by the radio sets in homes here and transformed into loud cracklings and buzzings which render broadcast programs all but unintelligible.

And for want of positive knowledge of the real reason for the stray waves in the ether, fans have been vociferous in blaming everything from spots on the sun to amateur spark coil sets and the local power lines.

The center of the disturbance has not been located as yet, but a formal request was made by a number of radio fans to Harry Cunningham, South Washington street, chief lineman for the Hanover Light and Power Company, that he investigate the conditions of transformers and insulators on the high voltage lines in and near Gettysburg with a view to locating the trouble, if it exists there.

Mr. Cunningham, while stating it to be his belief that the trouble was coming from some more distant place, promised to look into the condition of the apparatus here. If it is due to some defective portion of the power company's equipment, Mr. Cunningham promised that immediate relief would be obtained for radio fans. "I sympathize with all who enjoy listening in on the air as much as I do myself, and readily appreciate the annoyance which might come from having programs consistently interfered with by some cause which could easily be corrected," Mr. Cunningham assured inquirers.

Will Again Meet Dickinson at Island Park Harrisburg
Next Fall.

There are nine games on the completed schedule for the Gettysburg College football team this year, being one less than the number played last season. The completed schedule with the dates was made public this morning.

The resumption of football relations with Bucknell University, which was abandoned in 1921, is the feature of the 1924 football schedule.

These two rival teams will clash in Altoona on November 8, the game incidentally marking the first inter-collegiate football contest in that city's history. It will be played in the Pennsylvania Railroad bowl, seating 38,000 persons, for the benefit of the Pennsylvania Railroad Athletic Association.

Harrisburg Game On

Previous to the Bucknell game, Gettysburg will meet another old rival, Dickinson, at Harrisburg, and will endeavor to achieve its seventh straight victory over the Carlisle institution. The Thanksgiving contest in Lancaster will mark the thirty-first annual game with Franklin and Marshall. The two hardest games on the schedule are, as usual, Penn State and Lehigh. The schedule follows:

The Schedule
Sept. 27, Juniata at Gettysburg; Oct. 4, Lehigh at Bethlehem; Oct. 11, State at State College; Oct. 18, Muhlenberg at Altoona; Oct. 25, Mount St. Mary's at Gettysburg; Nov. 1, Dickinson at Harrisburg; Nov. 8, Bucknell at Altoona; Nov. 15, St. Johns at Gettysburg; Nov. 27, Franklin and Marshall at Lancaster.

Follow Dancing.

Members of the cast of "Officer 666," the local Legion post show, wives of members of the cast and helpers motored to Graeffenburg Inn Wednesday evening, partook of a chicken and waffle dinner, danced and afterward practiced for coming engagements of the show. Twenty-one persons were in the party.

The show was to have been produced at the Mont Alto Sanitarium this evening for the benefit of ex-service men and others in training there, but on account of the condition of the road from the Lincoln Highway to the sanitarium the play will be given next Wednesday evening.

On March 1, "Officer 666" will "do his stuff" for the upper end of the county when the show will be produced at Fruit Growers' Hall, Bendersville, and one week later at Arendtsville.

GASOLINE PRICE PROBE IS SOUGHT

Recent Sharp Rise in This Section Cited, Local Motorists Say.

In view of the recent advances in the price of gasoline in Gettysburg and this section of the State, motorists here who are members of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation and affiliated organizations feel a timely interest in a recent communication from the Federation in connection with the present investigation into the oil situation, now being conducted.

If the advances in the price of gasoline made during the past six months be maintained, it will mean an increase of $300,000,000 in the annual cost of operating the nation's motor vehicles, according to a statement sent to its 62 affiliated motor clubs by the Pennsylvania Motor Federation.

The statement asks for an endorsement of President Coolidge for his prompt action in ordering an investigation into the recent sharp rise in the price of gasoline, and quotes from a letter sent to the President last week by Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association, in which he says:

"Advance in gasoline prices are so often made simultaneously at filling stations in given territory as to seem to indicate an agreement or concerted action. If it is due to cost of production gasoline is unique in its relation to natural economic laws. There is often a differential of from one to two cents in crossing state lines. There is a dominating influence somewhere that seemingly is not related to the law of supply and demand."

"We want the people to know the real reasons, if any exist, for the price being from two to six cents higher in one section than the price quoted in an adjoining territory and why the price can be arbitrarily increased in certain sections over night."

Call money opened at 4 per cent.

Senate Lay Plans For New Campaign.

HINT NEW INFORMATION

Is Revealed Much of Data Collected
in Oil Inquiry Has Been Withheld
From Congress.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Having failed to induce President Coolidge to immediately remove Attorney General Daugherty from office, Mr. Daugherty's critics in the Senate today laid out a plan of campaign which they predicted would force him to resign.

Preparations were made to lay before the country in a public inquiry new information and charges that recently have reached the ears of Senators and to make even clearer the belief of Republican Senate leaders that the Attorney General should no longer be permitted to sit in the cabinet.

It was revealed today that much of the material collected by those opposing Mr. Daugherty as well as much of the data gathered by individual Senators in the oil inquiry has been withheld by those who recently have been attacked by Congress.

Among other things a special investigator has reported that the name of a cabinet official appears among those listed as having purchased Sinclair oil stock. (This development has been reported to the oil committee and to the President.)

OIL BETRAYAL HIT IN M'ADOO SPEECH

Life of Nation at Stake, He Says, Assailing G. O. P. Rule.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 21.—Betrayal of trust by high government officials presents a greater menace to Democracy than Bolshevism or any other of the alleged evil influences, William G. McAdoo, candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, declared in an address on the train platform at the Union Station here Wednesday.

"There can be no government with corruption in high places," Mr. McAdoo said. "This is a question of the life of the American nation. We must bring honesty back to government."

The investigation must go on, he said, until all of the facts are brought out, adding that he did not wish to see any attempt to "white-wash" any one. Mr. McAdoo reasserted his stand for a soldiers' bonus, and declared that the government had been unfair to those in the war.

"The veterans' bureau, whose sacred duty was to protect and care for the disabled and sick, stole money from these boys," he said. "What can be said of a government so bad as that?"

"The Democrats didn't debauch the government. Through the eight years of Woodrow Wilson's administration, and in the eight years that Grover Cleveland was president, there was no such corruption. It remained for the administration which promised the people that the best minds would rule to betray the government."

Regarding the approval of a Democratic tax plan by congress, Mr. McAdoo said: "Yesterday a new and fresh break of cleanliness and patriotism came out of congress. The Republicans, who would refuse our service men a bonus, would have reduced the taxes on the rich and made the burden of the poor man harder."

LOVER'S JEALOUSY CAUSE OF JAP POLITICAL CRISIS

Tokio, Feb. 21.—How an obscure lover's jealousy precipitated a national political crisis was revealed today by a police statement regarding an attempt to wreck a train near Nagoya January 31 which led to or at least hastened dissolution of the Imperial Diet.

Enraged because his sweetheart had jilted him, so the explanation goes, a farmer gave vent to his wrath by pulling levers and wrecking the railroad track having as a result the consequences of his act. He is being held for trial in a local court.

Postal Workers and Court House Officials Keep Holiday; Factories and Stores Remain Open as Usual; Flags in Evidence.

Friday, while considered unlucky from some points of view, will be lucky for numbers of persons in Gettysburg and through the county, by virtue of the fact that it is the anniversary of the birth of Washington, first president of the United States.

February 22, as a legal holiday in most states of the Union, will be observed by all of the banks and by offices in the Court House.

The Post Office observes holiday hours, no mail carriers taking their routes during the day, either in the city or through the county. One early collection will be made in Gettysburg, and mails will be received and dispatched as usual. While the lobby of the Post Office will be open, stamp, registry and other windows remain closed throughout the day.

Stores, however, continue to do business as usual, as do most of the factories and plants of town, includ-

For Event; County Delegation to Christian Endeavor societies of most of the churches of Adams county,

Endeavor Union, are now engaged in preparations to send delegates to the eleventh annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Christian Endeavor Union, which will be held in Pittsburgh from July 7 to 11 this year.

According to local workers, plans of the State Union call for the largest gathering of its kind ever attempted, and will include a gigantic missionary pageant with a cast of 1,000 persons; a parade of more than 20,000 attendants to the sessions is being arranged. It is announced that over 6,000 delegates from all sections of Pennsylvania have already registered, and thousands of members of practically every church young people's organization in the State are expected to attend.

Plans for the reception of the visitors in Pittsburgh have been completed. Forbes field and Memorial hall, Carnegie Institute of Technology and Pennsylvania College for Women dormitories have been secured. During convention week conferences will be held in Pittsburgh churches as well as regular business and educa-

RADIO PROGRAMS ARE BROKEN UP

Local Buzzing, Cracking and Banging Literally "Makes
the Welkin Ring."

Radio in Gettysburg is "on the bum."

This was the universal complaint heard on the streets this morning wherever radio "fans" got together to talk things over.

For, starting with late Tuesday night, the air has been filled with an electrical disturbance which is picked up by the radio sets in homes here and transformed into loud crack-lings and buzzings which render broadcast programs all but uninter-elligible.

And for want of positive knowledge of the real reason for the stray waves in the ether, fans have been vociferous in blaming everything from spots on the sun to amateur spark coil sets and the local power lines.

The center of the disturbance has not been located as yet, but a formal request was made by a number of radio fans to Harry Cunningham, South Washington street, chief linesman for the Hanover Light and Power Company, that he investigate the conditions of transformers and insu-lators on the high voltage lines in and near Gettysburg with a view to locating the trouble, if it exists there.

Mr. Cunningham, while stating it to be his belief that the trouble was coming from some more distant place, promised to look into the condition of the apparatus here. If it is due to some defective portion of the power company's equipment, Mr.
Cunningham promised that immediate repair would be obtained for radio fans. "I sympathize with all who enjoy 'listening in' on the air as much as I do myself, and readily appreciate the annoyance which might come from having programs consistently interfered with by some cause which could easily be corrected," Mr. Cunningham assured inquirers.

it would be the forerunner of court some of the news that some of the great newspapers did not see fit to print. He added that he was prepared to spend more than the amount named in the suit to prepare his case.

COLLEGE TEAM TO PLAY NINE GAMES

Will Again Meet Dickinson at Island Park Harrisburg
Next Fall.

There are nine games on the completed schedule for the Gettysburg College football team this year, being one less than the number played last season. The completed schedule with the dates was made public this morning.

The resumption of football relations with Bucknell University, which were abandoned in 1921, is the feature of the 1924 football schedule.

These two rival teams will clash in Altoona on November 8, the game incidentally marking the first intercollegiate football contest in that city's history. It will be played in the Pennsylvania Railroad bowl, seating 38,000 persons, for the benefit of the Pennsylvania Railroad Athletic Association.

Harrisburg Game On
Previous to the Bucknell game, Gettysburg will meet another old rival, Dickinson, at Harrisburg, and will endeavor to achieve its seventh straight victory over the Carlisle institution. The Thanksgiving contest in Lancaster will mark the thirty-first annual game with Franklin and Marshall. The two hardest games on the schedule are, as usual, Penn State and Lehigh. The schedule follows:

The Schedule
Sept. 27, Juniata at Gettysburg;
Oct. 4, Lehigh at Bethlehem; Oct.
11, State at State College; Oct. 18,
Muhlenberg at Allentown; Oct. 25,
Mount St. Mary's at Gettysburg; Nov.
1, Dickinson at Harrisburg; Nov. 8, Bucknell at Altoona; Nov. 15, St.
Johns at Gettysburg; Nov. 27, Franklin and Marshall at Lancaster.

SHOW CAST EATS AT GRAEFFENBURG INN

Twenty-One Persons in Party; Practices For Engagements
Follow Dancing.

Members of the cast of "Officer 666," the local Legion post show, wives of members of the cast and helpers motored to Graeffenburg Inn Wednesday evening, partook of a chicken and waffle dinner, danced and afterward practiced for coming engagements of the show. Twenty-one persons were in the party.

The show was to have been produced at the Mont Alto Sanitarium this evening for the benefit of ex-service men and others in training there, but on account of the condition of the road from the Lincoln Highway to the sanitarium the play will be given next Wednesday evening.

On March 1, "Officer 666" will "do his stuff" for the upper end of the county when the show will be produced at Fruit Growers' Hall, Bendersville, and one week later at Arendtsville.

Those in the party to Graeffenburg Inn were Fred Pfeffer, J. Frank Stokes, J. Harold Mumper, Miss Grace
E. Ramer, Miss Ellen E. Tipton, E.

GASOLINE PRICE PROBE IS SOUGHT

Recent Sharp Rise in This Section Cited, Local Motorists Say.

In view of the recent advances in the price of gasoline in Gettysburg and this section of the State, motorists here who are members of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation and affiliated organizations feel a timely interest in a recent communication from the Federation in connection with the present investigation into the oil situation, now being conducted.

If the advances in the price of gasoline made during the past six months be maintained, it will mean an increase of $300,000,000 in the annual cost of operating the nation's motor vehicles, according to a statement sent to its 62 affiliated motor clubs by the Pennsylvania Motor Federation.

The statement asks for an endorsement of President Coolidge for his prompt action in ordering an investigation into the recent sharp rise in the price of gasoline, and quotes from a letter sent to the President last week by Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association, in which he says:

"Advance in gasoline prices are so often made simultaneously at filling stations in given territory as to seem to indicate an agreement or concerted action. If it is due to cost of production gasoline is unique in its relation to natural economic laws.
There is often a differential of from one to two cents in crossing state lines. There is a dominating influence somewhere that seemingly is not related to the law of supply and demand."

"We want the people to know the real reasons, if any exist, for the price being from two to six cents higher in one section than the price quoted in an adjoining territory and why the price can be arbitrarily increased in certain sections over night."

STOCK REPORT

(By Associated Press.)
New York, Feb. 21.—Narrow changes, mostly in the upward direction, were the rule at the outset of stock trading today. Influenced by reports of generally favorable conditions, operators on the long side extended their activity as the session progressed. Trading was rather quiet, but the buying orders were distributed over a wide list with the oils, steels, equipments and sugars showing strength. Railroads were irregular. Call money opened at 4 per cent.

WILL NOW FORCE DAUGHERTY OUT

Attorney General's Critics in Senate Lay Plans For New Campaign.

HINT NEW INFORMATION

Is Revealed Much of Data Collected
in Oil Inquiry Has Been Withheld
From Congress.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Feb. 21.—Having failed to induce President Coolidge to immediately remove Attorney General Daugherty from office, Mr. Daugh-erty's critics in the Senate today laid out a plan of campaign which they predicted would force him to resign.
Preparations were made to lay before the country in a public inquiry new information and charges that recently have reached the ears of Senators and to make even clearer the belief of Republican Senate leaders that the Attorney General should no longer be permitted to sit in the cabinet.

It was revealed today that much of the material collected by those opposing Mr. Daugherty as well as much of the data gathered by individual Senators in the oil inquiry has been withheld by those who recently have been attacked by Congress.

Among other things a special investigator has reported that the name of a cabinet official appears among those listed as having purchased Sinclair oil stock. (This development has been reported to the oil committee and to the President.)

OIL BETRAYAL HIT IN M'ADOO SPEECH

Life of Nation at Stake, He Says, Assailing G. O.
P. Rule.

(By Associated Press.)

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 21.—Betrayal of trust by high government officials presents a greater menace to Democracy than Bolshevism or any other of the alleged evil influences.
William G. McAdoo, candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, declared in an address on the train platform at the Union Station here Wednesday.

"There can be no government with corruption in high places," Mr. Mc-Adoo said. "This is a question of the life of the American nation. We must bring honesty back to government."

The investigation must go on, he said, until all of the facts are brought out, adding that he did not wish to see any attempt to "white-wash" any one. Mr. McAdoo reasserted his stand for a soldiers' bonus, and declared that the government had been unfair to those in the war.

"The veterans' bureau, whose sacred duty was to protect and care for the disabled and sick, stole money from these boys," he said. "What can be said of a government so bad as that?"

THE BURDEN INCREASED

By AGNES G. BROGAN

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

PIERRE came down the snowy pathway holding the child sheltered against his breast. Unconscious of the gaze that followed him, he walked on, absorbed in troubled thought. It was of Meg that Pierre was thinking. Meg with her dusky hair, her soft blue eyes—and far from softened nature. Long had Pierre loved Meg—unavailingly. He believed that he might have won this woman of his heart, had not other responsibilities—in Meg's opinion—shut her out. His mother had been an invalid since his boyhood; patient in her crippled state, she spent the weary hours of her son's absence in the big bed which Pierre had placed in the living room, near the fire. He realized that in her early widowhood his mother had spent her strength in privation and labor, in this far country to which her young husband brought her.

His father's people had been fur traders, well content with their lives of adventure and risk. On Pierre, too, as a boy, enjoyed the cold winters in the open—the woods, in the glory of spring.

When Meg, with her Scotch father came to occupy the cabin on the edge of Combers wood Pierre's cup of joy had run over. Never had he known a woman so beautiful—so endearing. The young man formed a habit of stopping at the cabin to ask the Scotchman's advice on various ventures, to watch Meg adoringly as she went about her household tasks.

An independent creature was Jamie Caven's daughter. Pierre found her no easy subject to woo, his very life offered at her feet.

"Well, mayhap some day," was the laughing answer she gave to his proposal of marriage.

When Jamie Caven died the woodsman saw to it that Meg lacked no needed assistance. Meg preferred to remain in the lonely place, cheerful, to outward appearance, aloof still to the man who loved her. At length she confessed to Pierre the reason of her refusal to marry. "You are not free to offer yourself to a woman," said Meg cruelly, "when you have the constant care of another upon your hands. You're too burdensome long enough, and may have always. I'm for living free Pierre, my own life. So, good-by."

He had turned from Meg coldly; in his secret heart had been a cherished picture of her, there with his gentle mother, in the big house desolate so long. Since that day of sorrowful disillusionment Pierre had not seen Meg. Now, he trudged on through the snow with his added burden. If there had been hope of winning Meg at some later day, that hope was shattered with his joy. Robert Westly, dying in his shack in the wood, had begged his trusted friend to look after his motherless atom of childhood.

"I cannot leave Lily with some hireling here," he moaned. So, Pierre carried Lily sheltered in his kindly arms. He thought that his mother might keep the baby beside her on the great white bed while he, following her direction, would give the best care he could. The wind tore at his breath. Pierre, glancing through unheeded tears, saw Meg's lighted cabin before him. Led by an overwhelming impulse, he made his way to the cabin door. She opened to him. Pierre pushed his way in before her. "I could go no farther without resting," he explained, then placed the small bundle in the woman's arms.

"Robert Westly's baby," Pierre said, his voice rough with pain—"an added burden I've taken on—to widen the breach between us. Robert died today." Meg was bending over the baby. "Why," she said breathlessly—"Why, the tiny dear thing. I'm like a child. Pierre, that's longing for a doll, and all at once the doll is brought to her. Leave poor Robert's baby here the night. I'll be knowing best what's to do for her, and in the morning I'll fetch her to your home."

Pierre was back at the cabin very early in the morning, his sled waiting outside. He had lain awake in the hours of the night, fearing that Meg's softened mood might pass. She met him with an eager smile. The baby caught Meg's smile—held out tiny hands for her caress.

The cabin floor was covered with bits of gay cloth. "Where I've been sorting the pieces to make clothes for Lily," she told the wondering Pierre. "You see, the pink frock of mine that you used to like, and the blue one will make pretty dresses for Lily, when she'll be walking next summer. The red cape is to be cut up at once to fashion into a warm coat and bonnet."

"Next summer!" faltered Pierre, "then you will still see me. Meg—help me with the baby, perhaps? Ah! that would be a comfort."

Meg pulled the knitted cap over her dusky hair. "There are burdens and burdens," she remarked, "but when a man has one too many, why, then the woman who loves him must take it upon herself, and gladly to share them. I am coming with you this morning, Pierre, kindly heart, to arrange with your mother to make the house habitable for your larger family."

Meg slipped into her lover's arms. "Your mother and your wife," she said, "we're going to have a time spoiling that baby."

VISITORS BITE DUST IN CAGE GAME

Dickinson Completely Outclassed in Second Period of Brilliant Contest.

In a game that spectators declared was the best collegiate contest in the College gymnasium this season, the Gettysburg College basketball team ran rings around the Dickinson College quintet in the second period of their Wednesday evening set-to, defeating the Carlisle five by the score 32 to 15.

From a tie score of 11-all at half time, Gettysburg's passers jumped into the van and completely swamped the visitors in the second period, running up 21 points, while they held the Dickinsonians to four.

Dickinson came to Gettysburg in a spirit of over-confidence, Carlisle rooters said, having defeated the strong Washington College team at Carlisle last week, after that team decisively trimmed Gettysburg.

Gettysburg was at a disadvantage in the first period in being unable to penetrate Dickinson's five-man defense, but the second period saw the Orange and Blue passers batter down every semblance of defense the Dickinson quintet threw up. Gettysburg was in possession of the ball almost throughout the second period. When the visitors had the sphere, they were unable to penetrate Gettysburg's defense.

The Gettysburg squad never played with better teamwork than in Wednesday evening's fracas. When on the offensive, the five men were playing hand in hand and when compelled to take the defense every "mother's son" was a guard.

Gerhart, Gettysburg's tall, blonde tipoff man, was the individual star of the Gettysburg team, if such a man is judged by his playing and the score he turns in. Gerhart was over the floor like lightning, at once on the offense and defense, and chalked up a total of 13 points for his Alma Mater. While Gerhart probably was the individual star of the game, the other four men on the team deserve as much credit as he for the way in which they played. "Snaps" Emanuel's floorwork and footwork was as good as any he has exhibited this year, and he and Peduzzi made an excellent pair at forward.

"Junie" Bream, who is taking Barbour's place at guard, was responsible for the breaking up of many of would-be Dickinson field goals and was on the ball the second it bounded away from the basket. Fisher's work at guard was also the best shown by the fast defense man this season. Wallace starred for Dickinson.

Following is the summary:
GETTYSBURG Dickinson
Emanuel F. H. Johnson
Peduzzi F. P. Johnson
Gerhart C. Wallace
Bream G. Irwin
Fisher G. Kline
Substitution: Schlossbach for P. Johnson. Field goals: Emanuel 2, Peduzzi 3, Gerhart 5, Fisher 4, H. Johnson 1, P. Johnson 1, Wallace 2. Foul goals: Peduzzi 1, Gerhart 3, P. Johnson 3, Wallace 3, Irwin 1. Referee, Earl Killinger.

MARION STAR TO SUE VANDERLIP

Moore and Brush Ask $600,000 Damage For Alleged Slander.

OSSINING SPEECH CAUSE

Three Causes For Action Cited, $200,000 Being Asked on Each Complaint; Say Credit Was Hurt.

New York, Feb. 21.—Louis P. Brush and Roy D. Moore, owners of the Marion Star, which they purchased from President Harding, filed suit Wednesday in Federal Court against Frank A. Vanderlip, retired banker, for $600,000 damages for alleged slander and libel. The suit is the result of Mr. Vanderlip's purported utterances in an address at Ossining on February 12.

The complaint cites three alleged causes of action and asks damages of $200,000 on each case.

Says Bribery Was Charged

The first cause alleges that Mr. Vanderlip in a speech before the Rotary Club at Ossining, N. Y., on February 12, "did wickedly and maliciously charge Brush and Moore had entered into, and carried out a criminal conspiracy with certain other persons, whose names are unknown, to bribe Warren G. Harding, who was then the President of the United States, to fail to perform certain of his official duties as President, and that the bribe consisted in the payment to former President Harding of $550,000 in the purchase of the Marion Star, which was more than twice its fair value."

The Vanderlip speech, it was charged, was regarded as an attack upon the integrity of the late President Harding by implying that the sale of the late President's newspaper was involved in the naval reserve oil leases investigation.

Says Credit Was Injured

The defendant's statements, it was further charged, accused the plaintiffs of "being financially irresponsible and insolvent and not able to meet their financial obligations and not entitled to credit." It was charged that the statements involved the plaintiffs and their newspaper.

The second cause of action is based on the alleged efforts of Mr. Vanderlip to obtain publication of his speech in the New York Tribune of February 13 by requesting a reporter for that paper to be present when he delivered the speech.

Copy of Speech Approved

The third cause of action alleges that Mr. Vanderlip admitted before the Senate investigating committee that he approved the copy of his speech presented to him at his New York office the morning of February 13 by a representative of the Associated Press and that, as a result, the Associated Press transmitted it and Mr. Vanderlip's remarks were read by millions of people.

In claiming $600,000 damages Brush and Moore state that the stock of the Harding Publishing Company, which they formed after purchasing control of the Marion Star, had a substantial market value, and "that by reason of the utterance and publication of said defamatory statements by the defendant the market value of said preferred and common stock has been greatly reduced and the plaintiffs have suffered great damage because thereof."

Brush and Moore, in a statement issued Wednesday night, said:

"By initiating these proceedings it is our desire not only to clear our own records by legal process, but to wipe out the defamation of the name and memory of President Harding."

Mr. Vanderlip admitted he had been served with the papers in the libel action, but declared he had not yet found time to read them "and didn't know what they were about." He said he probably would not find time to read them before today, adding he had no statement to make regarding the suit.

Heresy Is Charged to Bishop Brown.

As the outcome of a movement started by lay members of the Protestant Episcopal Church, charges of extreme heresy have been made against the Rt. Rev. Dr. William Montgomery Brown, of Oulton, Ohio, former Bishop of Arkansas, who retired from that diocese in 1911 because of ill health. It is charged he does not believe that Jesus ever lived.

JAMES M. COX AGAIN IN RACE

1920 Presidential Candidate Authorizes Ohio Delegates to Use His Name.

Cleveland, Feb. 21.—James M. Cox, Democratic Presidential candidate in 1920 and former Governor of Ohio, contemplates entering the race for the Presidency again this year, it developed here Wednesday night.

Twelve blank declarations bearing the signature of Mr. Cox and giving his consent to Cleveland delegates to the Democratic National Convention to use his name were received here Wednesday by Thomas R. Brannon, treasurer of Cuyahoga county Democratic executive committee.

The blanks were accompanied by a letter dated February 19, which contained reservations about holding the blanks until Mr. Cox formally should file his declaration of candidacy with Secretary of State Thad H. Brown.

Campbell As A Second Choice

"We are enclosing herewith blanks for delegates and alternates to the Democratic National Convention carrying the necessary consent of the candidate for President, James M. Cox," the letter states. "We have also inserted the name of ex-Gov. James E. Campbell as second choice."

Because the letter came from Democratic State headquarters, Cleveland Democrats are inclined to feel that the State organization will strongly support the Cox candidacy.

The declarations must be filed before midnight, February 29.

Political Agent Explains

Robert S. Hayes, Columbus attorney, said to be the only person in Ohio authorized to speak politically for former Governor Cox, issued Wednesday night the following statement in regards to Mr. Cox's Presidential aspirations:

"It is well understood that former Governor Cox will give his formal consent to the use of his name in the Ohio Presidential primaries and that a full complement of delegates in each district and at large will be placed in the field.

"The matter of handling these declarations is in the hands of the friends of Mr. Cox as individuals and they are acting as individuals who have every reason to believe that he will have the united support of the Ohio delegation at the national convention for the reason that he is the most available candidate for the Presidency, from every point of view, that the Democratic party offers."

FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders From The Pennsylvania State College.

Legumes For Dairy Calves—The importance of alfalfa or red clover in the ration of the dairy calf has long been recognized. In addition to supplying protein and a liberal supply of calcium to meet the heavy demands of the growing calf, these hays when cured with little bleaching are very rich in vitamins which are necessary for the proper storage of calcium in the calf's body.

Clover Seed—There is much imported red clover seed on the market. Experiments at the Pennsylvania State College indicate that as a rule foreign clover seed is not as good as home grown seed. The Italian red clover seed especially has not proven hardy in severe winters.

Bracing the Apple Trees—The open winter has made the job of pruning the apple and peach trees less difficult than usual. This should give the orchardist the time to put in a few braces in the weak crotches of the apple trees which may have been neglected last year.

Starting Garden Plants—Gardeners who start their cabbage and lettuce plants in hot beds or green houses and harden them off in cold frames should plant their seed at once if they have not already done so.

Ordering Lime—Now is the time to order lime for your spring crops. Don't wait until the last minute and expect to get it on time. Experiments at the Pennsylvania State College show that medium applications of any form of lime once during each rotation are more economical than a heavier application at longer intervals.

SHOOTS PARENTS AS ANTI-CHRIST

Maniac in Religion Also Confesses to Slaying of Two Sisters.

BURNED THEM IN 1923

Florida Youth, Held by Police, Tells of Sin When 12 Years Old and of Urge to Retribution.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 21.—Confession of the murder of his father and mother here Tuesday night and his two sisters in Decatur, Georgia, a year ago was made here Wednesday afternoon by Frank McDowell, 22 years old, according to Chief of Police Coslick.

McDowell said that Tuesday night soon after his father and mother went to bed the anti-Christ became dominant and he got his pistol and shot his father and then his mother. They were to him not his father and mother, he said, but anti-Christ.

Then he went back to bed. McDowell said he awakened later when it began to rain and realized what he had done and there might be consequences. He said he got up and went to the kitchen and bumped his head against a shelf and then gave the alarm to the neighbors.

McDowell told the police that when he was twelve years old he committed a sin against the Holy Ghost and ever since then there had been an anti-Christ element in his family and he felt he had to remove it.

McDowell told the police that he had long believed his sisters were the anti-Christ element in his family and that he must remove them. He said he went into the room where they were sleeping and threw gasoline over their bed and then took a brand from the fireplace and set the gasoline ablaze.

Examination of the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. McDowell Wednesday morning showed that each had been shot twice. Powder burns around the wounds on the man indicated the pistol was close to his head when it was discharged.

The son, Frank, said that he was awakened by shots and as he started into the room where his father and mother were he was struck down. He told the police he did not have a pistol, but later admitted that he had been shooting at a mark in Bayboro Tuesday afternoon. He said he had cleaned his pistol and reloaded it after he got home, but the pistol that was found and which he admitted was his had recently been fired and there were two empty shells in it.

The police found a slit cut in the front door screen of the McDowell home and have established that the cut was from inside, and have found a pocket knife belonging to Frank with nicks in the blade. They also found a weird religious note written on a typewriter and left in the house. The paper had been cut in the shape of a heart and the remnants were found in the bathroom. The paper is exactly like that used in the elder McDowell's office and the writing corresponds to the type on a machine in the same office. In the youth's room was found a religious psychological treatise in which four passages were marked, each being along the same lines as in the note found after the murder.

Frank's grandmother was in the house at the time of the shooting, but slept through it all and could not give any evidence. She is almost totally deaf.

Burning To Death of 2

Sisters Still A Mystery
Decatur, Ga., Feb. 21.—Marion, aged 18 years, and William Magee, 16 years of age, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McDowell, who were shot and killed in St. Petersburg, Fla., were burned to death here about one year ago, when they were trapped in a room in the McDowell home. Shortly after the fire, the family moved to St. Petersburg.

The blaze has always been a mystery. Fire officials stated at the time that gasoline was thrown through an open window into the girls' bedroom and ignited. Their charred bodies were found in the bed.

Several negroes were arrested as suspects, particularly a negroes whom Mrs. McDowell had discharged from her employ as a servant two days before the fire.

Mr. McDowell, who was 50 years of age, was a newspaper man and had been employed on various Georgia newspapers. He was proprietor of the De Kalb New Era or five years, but had disposed of his interests at the time of the tragedy. Shortly afterward he and his family moved to St. Petersburg.

SEES BANKRUPTCY FOR 1924 FARMER

Plea Made to Give Tillers Chance To Realize Profit on Sales.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Four hundred thousand farmers in this country face bankruptcy during 1924 unless agricultural conditions take a speedy change for the better, John J. Dyer, director of the American Farm Bureau Federation, declared Wednesday in addressing the Illinois Lumber Merchants Association.

"Emphatically, a agriculture is in a worse condition today than it has been at any time in the last four years," Mr. Dyer said. "Financial America says that it is due to poor banking methods, bad farming, one-crop farmers and other like contributing causes."

"Congress is being asked by some who are misguiding the nation's chief executive to appropriate $15,000,000 to institute diversified farming in the sick district, which will be about as effective as would be the institution of diversified manufacturing applied to an economically distressed New England."

"For four long years the farmer has been selling his merchandise below the cost of production."

"If a telephone company can be given a gratuity of $1,000,000 a year, as has just been done in Indiana, could there be any wrong in providing a similar gratuity to agriculture? Why is not agriculture a public utility?"

"The solution of the agriculture problem will be simple, if industry will agree that the first step must be the realizing of a profit out of the sales of its products and then the creation of the agencies for the conduct of the business."

JOHNNY WAS A HOME-MAKER

By BENTON GREY

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

"YOUR baby's come, Mr. Johnson," announced the postmaster, as the young settler halted his team in front of the post office at Alliance, Miss. "Just wait a minute and I'll bring him out to you." He disappeared within the door that led to his parlor, and presently emerged again, accompanied by his wife and a little boy of some three years, who snuggled up confidently into Johnson's face.

"Never knew you was a married man, Mr. Johnson," continued the postmaster sympathetically. "He seems to have made a sure enough long journey across the water all by himself. My wife says she'd be scared to death to send our Ella that distance by post. The mother ain't dead, I hope?"

"My baby!" Johnson yelled. "I'm a single man, Mr. Smith. How can it be my baby?"

The postmaster shook his head dubiously.

"He's tagged," he said, "and there's postmarks from most all the places he's passed through. 'C. Johnson, Alliance, Miss.' it reads. 'This is Alliance, and this is Mississippi, and you're sure enough C. Johnson, aren't you?"

"It's a mistake," groaned Johnson. "I never even dreamed of having a baby."

"Of course, Mrs. Smith will take charge of him for a while, if the sender can be found," said Ed Smith, gloomily. "But, having nine of our own, you'll understand that it would be kind of hard on us to keep him."

"You keep him for a few days until something more is heard about him," said Johnson. "Can't you have the sender traced?"

"I'll do my best," said Mr. Smith, and Johnson rode away.

That night the loneliness of his situation appealed to him more than ever before. He had almost forgotten the faithless young woman who had been the cause of his migration to this half-settled and almost uninhabited region. He had the normal human need of companionship—yet he had no one to call his, neither wife nor parents nor family. He surprised Mr. Smith by appearing at the post office again the next morning.

"I think I'll relieve you of the boy for a few days," he said. "It might be companionable—and then, when you get word of the sender we can have him shipped back again."

He did not return for several days, and when he did appear at the post office, Mr. Smith was amazed to hear the child calling him daddy.

"Well, you see," explained Johnson, sheepishly, "I came to the conclusion that I was a sort of selfish cuss, living all alone, and I might as well do a little good in the world. So Johnny and I have sort of struck up a partnership. He's going to run the home and I'm going to run the farm, aren't we, Johnny?"

"Yeth, daddy," said Johnny, clinging to his new father's coat.

Ed Smith turned to his wife when the cart had rolled away.

"I hate to think of Mr. Johnson's feelings when the real father turns up," he said.

"Perhaps he won't turn up," answered his wife. "Do you suppose?"

"No, no, my dear; it isn't his," her husband answered. "But it's a mighty queer situation."

The problem was solved a few days later by the arrival at the postmaster's office of a pretty and highly excited young woman, who inquired breathlessly for the boy.

"I got word at Alliance, Ark., she explained. 'My dead sister's boy, sent from Scotland. She was my only relative. You have him here?'"

"Well, not here," the postmaster admitted, rubbing his chin reflectively. "Might your name be Johnson, Miss?"

"Yes, Clarice Johnson."

"Well, it's odd; but the boy was addressed to C. Johnson—that stands for Charles; and as there's only one C. Johnson around here, I gave him to him."

"Then you must take him away at once," answered Miss Johnson.

"Well, I'll try," the postmaster said. "But Mr. Johnson kinder took a hankering after him."

"But he can't have him," cried the young woman, indignantly. "How can a stranger take a child away from his aunt?"

"He can't," admitted Mr. Smith. "Only he's sort of done it. However, you wait here, miss, and I'll get Mr. Johnson down by telephone inside of a couple of hours."

Two hours later Johnson, looking very uncomfortable, arrived with the boy. But Johnny absolutely refused to go with his new-found relative.

"I guess you'd better spend a day or two here, miss," suggested Mrs. Smith. "Then he'll grow sort of used to you, and it won't be so hard on them."

She accepted Mrs. Smith's hospitality. And soon the situation was self-evident. The child had evidently destroyed the original tag, and in re-writing it, the prefix Miss had somehow got placed at the end, where it read Mississippi.

But Johnny proved so reluctant to leave his new-found father that, long before the "day or two" was up, Johnson, having ascertained that Miss Johnson had no ties at Alliance, Ark., made a proposition embracing—

But what other sort of proposition would one expect at a town named Alliance?

TREE CLIMBING FISH SOUGHT

Ex-Chicago Mayor Ready to Bet $25,000 on Their Existence.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—That there are fish that climb trees in the South sea islands is so firmly believed by William Hale Thompson, former mayor of Chicago, that he has embarked on a motion picture impresario, it was learned Wednesday, with the incorporation of his South sea research company at Springfield.

The former mayor has offered to wager $25,000 that he can obtain films of the climbing fish, and if he is successful he is confident the company will be a financial success. In connection with the incorporation of the company the former mayor has arranged to send an expedition, headed by Captain A. J. Duken, of Chicago, to the South sea islands to have the films made. The ship is scheduled to leave the Great Lakes naval training station on July 4 next, following a large picnic which the mayor and his friends will attend.

"There are many millions of persons interested in fish," said the former mayor. "The facts are that 1,000,000 persons passed through the Lincoln Park aquarium in 129 days and that 51,000,000 persons went through the aquarium at the Battery in New York city in twenty-six years. Now recent jungle pictures made a profit of $500,000. I figure that pictures of fish climbing trees ought to be profitable. At least I have been willing to bet $25,000 that these pictures can be obtained, and while only part of the money has been taken I hope that my wife has a conservator appointed for me that takers for all of that amount can be found."

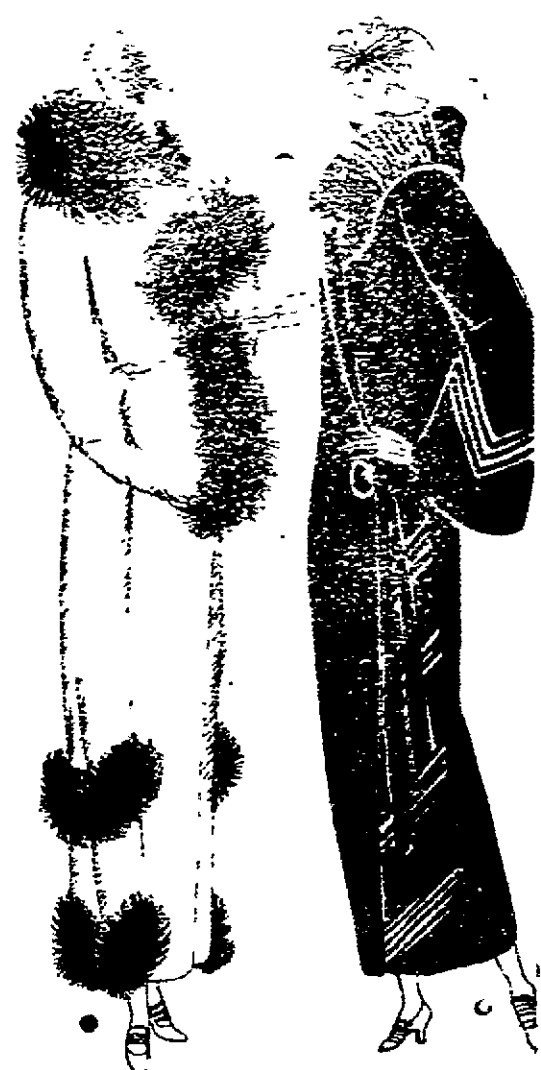

"I have strong reasons to believe that in the South sea islands there the fish that come out of the water, can live on land, will jump three feet to catch a grasshopper and actually climb trees. Captain Duken lived in the South sea islands for eight years."

COUNTY C. E. TO SEND DELEGATES

Bascom Copenhaven of the Lutheran church board, and is the biggest thing ever attempted. It will be an elaborate affair of considerable educational merit, it is promised. Religious history in all its phases will be depicted by church people of all ages. The exact date of the pageant will be determined by weather conditions inasmuch as it will be an outdoor event. It is planned to hold it on the second or third day of convention week.

Many of the visitors will be entertained in homes of Pittsburgh Endeavor members, according to plans of the committee headed by Margaret Latham. All persons registered before the first of the year will be taken care of in this way. Arrangements have been completed to care for others in the dormitories of Tech and Pennsylvania College for Women at a nominal cost.

One of the outstanding features of the convention will be a chorus of 500 voices, all members of the Pittsburgh Endeavor Union. The chorus has been training for the past two months under the direction of Robert J. McDowell, professor of music. Their singing will be included in every session.

Sight seeing trips through the city including tours of the city's historical spots, factories and steel mills have been planned also.

In Allegheny county more than 3,000 delegates have been registered. The limit has been set at 5,000 and when the quota is filled others desiring to register will be permitted to do so only as visitors. Philadelphia county has registered 256 delegates and Chester county has 190 at the present time. Adams county's registration will be announced as soon as completed.

Out of 67 counties in the state, a total of 1509 registrations have been received with 28 counties yet to be heard from. Since December, 1916 of this number have been received and additional names are coming in daily. Judging from the number of registrations received during the past month, it is anticipated that at least 15,000 delegates will be registered by June 1 with the possibility of another 5,000 by the time of the convention.

Badges for the delegates have been ordered. They are designed after the emblem of the order in a gold bronze hung on a ribbon of red and white, the state colors of the Christian Endeavor.

BANKERS GOING TO GROUP 5 MEETING

first address will be made by Dr. C. H. Hadley, director of the bureau of plant industry of the State Department of Agriculture. He will talk on the menace of the Japanese beetle. Greetings from the State Banking Department will be given by Captain Alvin M. Whitney, deputy secretary of banking.

Then will follow an address by Dr. J. T. Holdsworth, president of the Pennsylvania Joint Stock Land Bank, of Pittsburgh whose subject will be, "A Better Day for the Farmer and Banker."

Robert S. Binkard, vice-chairman of the Commission on Public Relations of Eastern Railways, will be the next speaker, taking as the subject, "The American Citizen and His Railroads." New business and election of officers will come next and then the banquet will be held.

There are 235 member banks in Group Five of the association, including institutions from Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Fulton, Juniata, Lancaster, Lebanon, Mifflin, Perry and York counties.

CHAPTER V

Joan and Prosper.

The situation was no doubt an extraordinary, an unimaginable one, but it had to be met. When he returned to the box, Prosper had himself in hand, and, sitting a little farther back than before, he watched the second act with a sufficiency of outward calm.

This part was the most severe test of his composure, for he had fashioned it almost in detail upon that igit in a canyon. There were even speeches of Joan's that he had used. To sit here and watch Joan herself go through it, while he looked on, was an exciting form of torment. The setting was different, tropical instead of Northern, and the half-native heroine was more passionate, more emotional, more animal than Joan. Nevertheless, the drama was a repetition. As Prosper had laid his trap for Joan, silently, subtly undermining her whole mental structure, using her loneliness, playing upon the artist's soul of her, so did this Englishman lay his trap for Zola. He was more cruel than Prosper, rougher, necessarily more dramatic, but there was all the essence of the original drama, the ensnarement of a simple, direct mind by a complex and skillful one. Joan's surrender, Prosper's victory, were there. He wondered how Joan could act it, play the part in cold blood. Now he was condemned to live in his own imagination through Joan's tragedy. There was that first pitifulness of a tamed and broken spirit; then later, in London, the agony of loneliness, of separation, of gradual awakening to the change in her master's heart. Prosper had written the words, but it was Joan who, with her voice, the music of memory-shaken heart-strings, made the words alive and meaningful. Others in the audience might wonder over the girl's ability to interpret this unusual experience, to make it natural, human, inevitable. But Prosper did not wonder. He knew that simply she forced herself to relive this most painful part of her own life and to relive it articulately. What, in God's name, had induced her to do it? Necessity? Poverty? Morena? All at once he remembered Betty's belief, that Joan was the manager's mistress—his wild, beautiful Joan, Joan, the creation of his own wizardry. This thought gave him such pain that he whistled.

"Prosper," murmured Betty, "you must tell me what is wrong. Evidently your nerves are in bad shape. Is the excitement too much for you?"

"I believe it is," he said, avoiding her eyes and moving stiff, white lips. "I've never seen such acting. I—I—Morena says he'll let me see her in her dressing-room afterward. You see, Betty, I'm badly shaken up."

"Ye-es," drawled Betty, and looked at him through narrowed lids, and she sat with this look on her face and with her fingers locked, when Prosper, not giving her further notice, followed Morena out.

"Jasper"—Prosper held his friend back in the middle of a passage that led to the dressing-rooms—"I want back instantly his old poise, his old feeling of ascendancy.

"Joan, Joan," he said gently; "was ever anything so strange? Why didn't you let me know? Why didn't you answer my letters? Why didn't you take my money? I have suffered greatly on your account."

Joan laughed. Four years ago she would not have been capable of this laugh, and Prosper started.

"I wrote again and again," he said passionately. "When I told me that you had gone, that he didn't know anything about your plans. I went out to Wyoming, to our house. I scoured the country for you. Did you know that?"

"No," said Joan slowly. "I didn't know that. But it makes no difference to me."

They were still standing a few paces apart, too intent upon their inner tumult to heed any outward situation. She lowered her head in that dangerous way of hers, looking up at him from under her brows. Her color had returned and the make-up had a more natural look.

"Maybe you did write, maybe you did send money, maybe you did come back—I don't care anything for all that."

She made a gesture as if to sweep something away. "The day after you left me in that house, Pierre, my husband, came up the trail. He was taking after me. He meant to fetch me home. You told me"—she began to tremble so violently that the jewels on her neck clicked softly—"you told me he was dead."

Prosper came closer, she moving back, till, striking the chair, she sat down on it and looked up at him with her changed and embittered eyes.

"Would you have gone back to him, Joan Landis, after he had tied you up and branded your shoulder with his cattlebrand?"

"What has that got to do with it?" she asked, her voice lifting on a wave of anger. "That was between my man and me. That was not for you to judge. He loved me. It was through loving me too much, too ignorantly, that he hurt me so." She choked. "But you—"

"Joan," said Prosper, and he laid his hand on her cold and rigid fingers. "I loved you, too."

She was still and stiff. After a long silence she seemed to select one question from a tide of them.

"Why did you leave me?"

"I wrote you a full explanation. The letter came back to me unread."

Again Joan gave the laugh and the gesture of disdain.

to congress for tax reduction would be.

Herewith is printed for the information of those interested and everybody who has a taxable income is interested, a comparative table, which shows the total tax payable by a married person without dependents, under the rates of the present law, of the Mellon plan, supported by the Coolidge administration, and which the Republican members of the Ways and Means committee have adopted, and of the Garner plan, proposed by the Democrats, and which the Progressive Republicans and Farmer-Laborites have agreed to support.

Under the Mellon plan incomes under $2,000 will not be subject to tax. Under the Garner plan incomes under $3,000 will not be subject to tax. While the table shows the tax rates for married persons without children, as the basis of comparison, obviously the rates in the case of unmarried persons, or married persons with dependents, would be in the same proportion.

If the taxpayer will search out the amount of his own net income in the first column, in the second column he will find the amount he must pay under the present law; in the third column he will find the amount he would pay under the Mellon plan, and in the fourth column the amount he would pay under the Garner plan.

Snow Has Little Effect
HAGERSTOWN.—In spite of a steady fall of snow which began early Tuesday morning and lasted continuously throughout the day, traffic was but slightly affected here, even the trolley cars, usually the first to feel the results of a heavy snow storm, running only 15 minutes late. Snow was six inches deep at Keedysville at twilight Tuesday, with an even greater depth in other parts of the mountain districts where the fall was heavier. About 7 p. m. Tuesday night the precipitation changed to a fine sleet which formed a coating of ice and prevented drifting. The railway lines, the state highway commission and the Potomac Edison Company had snowplows busy all day, keeping tracks and roads clear and Tuesday night the trolley company's schedule had only varied about a quarter of an hour, cars to Shady Grove, Williamsport and Frederick all running a little behind time.

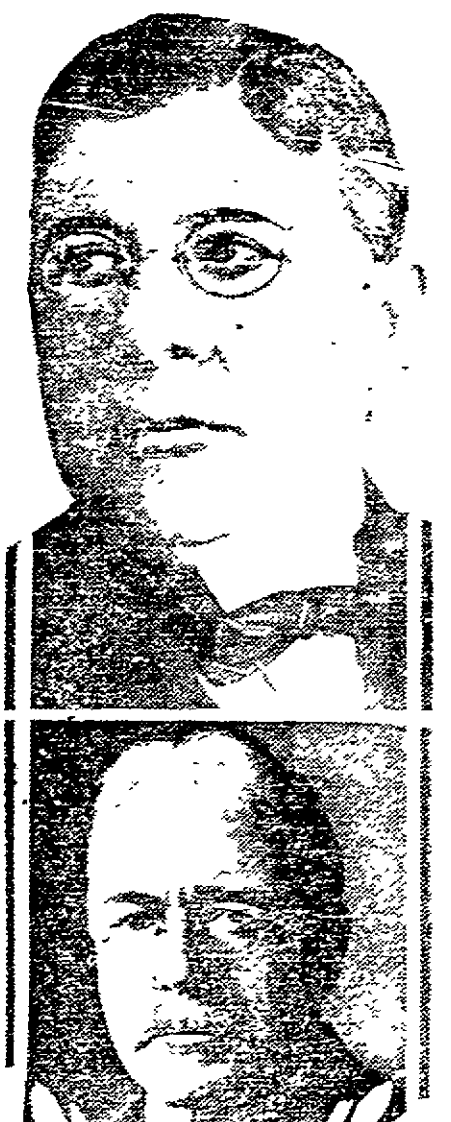

May Change Appointments
HAGERSTOWN.—That Governor Ritchie will ignore recommendations for police magistrates for Hagerstown made by the Democratic State Central Committee of Washington county and will reappoint the incumbent magistrates was the information reaching Hagerstown from Annapolis Tuesday night. While the information was based on rumors around the State House, it is known that many protests have reached the governor against the appointment of J. Scott Bower and Otto V. Middlekauff, who were recommended by the Central Committee. Whether Senator Wade will endeavor to have the Senate reject Halm and Bitner, in case they are reappointed, could not be learned but it is believed that the Washington county Senator had a hand in the selection of the two men who were recommended to Ritchie by the Central Committee.

To Probe Auto Accident
HAGERSTOWN.—State and local police will begin an investigation of a collision between an automobile occupied by an unknown man and woman and a street car of the Potomac-Edison Company at Potomac and Antietam streets Tuesday night. Officials of the railway company said that the two vehicles were being operated in opposite directions. When H. F. Long who was operating the street car saw that the other machine would not get out of the track he stopped his car. According to witnesses the other machine continued on and struck the trolley car.

CHAMBERSBURG.—A farmer's information bureau, through which information of interest to all classes of farmers will be dispensed and broadcast throughout sections of Franklin county, will be placed in operation, through newspapers from the headquarters at the Hagerfield estate agency in Lincoln Way East. Those interested in the project, who although new in this section of the state, is firmly established in the agricultural west and mid-west, William H. Horn, of New Franklin, R. O. Hafer, of Chambersburg, and Merle Heart, of Chambersburg. Heart will be the administrative head of the bureau office here. The bureau will gather, classify and distribute information of all kinds to the public, particularly farmers. Ten city stations will be established at various points in the county, and part of these community stores on certain days draw heavily on the top list of the respective sections. There are five principal classifications of information which the bureau will handle: 1. Machinery, feed, tools, fuel, etc., and 2. crops.

In the meantime Demas remains a jail. No information has been made against him, other than the result of Nicholas' injuries. Does This Condition Exist in Gettysburg?

A recent medical inspection of the public schools of Knoxville, Tennessee, revealed the astonishing fact that 50 per cent of the scholars suffered from mal-nutrition or were subnormal in health. This condition exists in a greater or less degree in Gettysburg and in the entire United States, and that is why Conner's Weearts came into existence. Conner's Weearts is a food with a purpose and that purpose is to supply those vital elements that are lacking in our daily diet.

John and Mary Are Here With A Breakfast Food to Convert This Condition.

Doctors Recommend Conner's Weearts Because:

- 1—They correct Mal-nutrition by supplying iron, vitaminous and rich nutrition.
- 2—They contain calcium which builds white, perfect teeth and prevents decay.
- 3—They contain the anti-neuritic vitamin which feeds and strengthens the nerves.
- 4—The bran and cellulose insures good digestion and relief from constipation.

THE FINAL RESTING PLACE

The mortal remains of Woodrow Wilson may lie forever beneath the nave of the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul, in Bethlehem chapel, overlooking the national capital and the Virginia shore. If that be the final decision, the place may be deemed appropriate enough. The body of no other of the presidents sleeps in the District of Columbia, but Wilson's may well do so.

The founders of the Cathedral, which is new, have dreamed of making it another Westminster Abbey. That this dream will be realized in America may well be doubted. Love of home is marked in this country. There is a strong, sentimental attachment for one's birthplace. Ours is a broad land, in which regional pride is powerful.

Only two of the presidents are buried elsewhere than in the place where their homes were. Arthur, born in Vermont and a resident of New York City, lies in Albany; Grant, whose birthplace was in Ohio and who was a resident of the District of Columbia when elected to the presidency, sleeps on the banks of the Hudson.

HERE AND THERE

Odds And Ends Of Local Interest In News Of The Day.

MAH JONGG IS ONE ALL-AROUND SPORT

A new sport has forced itself into the limelight in Gettysburg and Adams county. It is new, at least when catalogued with some of the simple, old-fashioned methods that old timers are wont to make use of to exercise their latent mental muscles. Mah Jongg has come to the front as the principal indoor sport forcing basketball, poker, and other old time favorites in the background.

No one will question the standing of Mah Jongg as a sport. Few will question its standing as an athletic sport. The few who might question its place in the latter category have never experienced its wonderful possibilities as a "sweat" producer.

The beauty of the game is that both sexes can play it. The sweet young tenor, is very apt to be more proficient at Punging and Chowling than the rugged male.

Great game, this Mah Jongg. And simple to understand. No more difficult than reading a Chinese laundry ticket.

It is played with dice. Experienced crap-shooters have that advantage at the outset. Such advantage, however, is offset by the necessity for skill in Punging and Chowling and handling the Ming, which can be gained only after long struggles with chop suey in a Chinese restaurant.

Wonderful game, both for diversion and as a social yard-stick. Particularly as a social yard-stick. If you boast of an ivory and bamboo set, you are accepted in the most select circles. Ownership of a pyralin set brings toleration. With nothing more than a wooden set, you are entirely outside the pale. Likewise, should you pronounce the name Maw Zhong, you prove your rightful place in the S. C. Should you be lax enough to pronounce it Maw Jong, you will be only tolerated by the S. C. Should you be unfortunate enough to pronounce it Maa Jong, your plebeian presence will be absolutely barred.

There are, of course, those who do not understand the importance of the game in a social way. There was the case of a young clerk who purchased an expensive set for his wife for a Christmas present and was accused of being "drunk" for his trouble. Such things, however, do not disturb a real Mah Jongg enthusiast.

Our suggestion is that the game be included in the events at all indoor meets. Appropriate prizes could be given. Male winners might be given a paid up laundry bill for one year at the nearest Chinese laundry. Female winners could be awarded medals with a dish of steaming chop suey engraved on the front and a platted "pigtail" engraved, wreath-like, on the reverse.

Edison says the time is coming when very few will work. Coming nothing. It is here now, Thomas.

CHARGE IT

She can say it with a smile:

"Charge it!"

Picks a hat right in style:

"Charge it!"

Shoes and underwear and lace,

Ribbons, powder for her face,

Anything at any place,

"Charge it!"

What a handy little phrase:

"Charge it!"

Earning every woman's praise:

"Charge it!"

"Yes, I think this one will do,

And I'll take the other, too

And the pink one and the blue,

"Charge it!"

"Send this costume up today,

"Charge it!"

This is all she has to say:

"Charge it!"

Rocking chair, new kitchen range,

Something striking, something and strange,

And she needn't wait for change:

"Charge it!"

It is good to hear her say:

"Charge it!"

For she has a queenly way:

"Charge it!"

But the monthly bills I dread,

For I always shake my head

When I find how oft she's said:

"Charge it!"

PIERRE came down the snowy pathway holding the child sheltered against his breast. Unconscious of the gale that buffeted he walked on, absorbed in troubled thought. It was of Meg that Pierre was thinking. Meg with her dusky hair, her soft blue eyes—and far from softened nature. Long had Pierre loved Meg—unavailingly. He believed that he might have won this woman of his heart, had not other responsibilities—in Meg's opinion—shut her out. His mother had been an invalid since his boyhood; patient in her crippled state, she spent the weary hours of her son's absence in the big bed which Pierre had placed in the living room, near the fire. He realized that in her early widowhood his mother had spent her strength in privation and labor, in this far country to which her young husband brought her.

His father's people had been fur traders, well content with their lives of adventure and ease. On Pierre, too, as a boy, enjoyed the cold winters in the open—the woods, in the glory of spring.

When Meg, with her Scotch father came to occupy the cabin on the edge of Combers wood Pierre's cup of joy had run over. Never had he known a woman so beautiful—so endearing. The young man developed a habit of stopping at the cabin to ask the Scotchman's advice on various ventures, to watch Meg adoringly as she went about her household tasks.

An independent creature was Jamie Cavens's daughter. Pierre found her no easy subject to woo, his very life offered at her feet.

"Well, mayhap some day," was the laughing answer she gave to his proposal of marriage.

When Jamie Cavens died the woods-men saw to it that Meg lacked no needed assistance. Meg preferred to remain in the lonely place, cheerful, to outward appearance, aloof still to the man who loved her. At length she confessed to Pierre the reason of her refusal to marry. "You are not free to offer yourself to a woman," said Meg cruelly, "when you have the constant care of another upon your hands. You've had burdens long enough, and may have always. I'm for living free Pierre, my own life. So, good-by."

He had turned from Meg coldly; in his secret heart had been a cherished picture of her, there with his gentle mother, in the big house desolate so long. Since that day of sorrowful disillusionment Pierre had not seen Meg. Now, he trudged on through the snow with his added burden. If there had been hope of winning Meg at some later day, that hope was shattered with his joy. Robert Wesley, dying in his shack in the wood, had begged his trusted friend to look after his motherless atom of childhood.

"I cannot leave Lily with some hireling here," he moaned. So, Pierre carried Lily sheltered in his kindly arms. He thought that his mother might keep the baby beside her on the great white bed while he, following her direction, would give the best care he could. The wind tore at his breath. Pierre, glancing through unheeded tears, saw Meg's lighted cabin before him. Led by an overwhelming impulse, he made his way to the cabin door. She opened to him. Pierre pushed his way in before her. "I could go no farther without resting," he explained, then placed the small bundle in the woman's arms.

"Robert Wesley's baby," Pierre said, his voice rough with pain—"an added burden I've taken on—to widen the breach between us. Robert died today."

Meg was bending over the baby. "Why," she said breathlessly—"Why, the tiny dear thing. I'm like a child. Pierre, that's longing for a doll, and all at once the doll is brought to her. Leave poor Robert's baby here the night. I'll be knowing best what's to do for her, and in the morning I'll fetch her to your home."

Pierre was back at the cabin very early in the morning, his sled waiting outside. He had lain awake in the hours of the night, fearing that Meg's softened mood might pass. She met him with an eager smile. The baby caught Meg's smile—held out tiny hands for her caress.

The cabin floor was covered with bits of gay cloth. "Where I've been sorting the pieces to make clothes for Lily," she told the wondering Pierre. "You see, the pink frock of mine that you used to like, and the blue one will make pretty dresses for Lily, when she'll be walking next summer. The red cape is to be cut up at once to fashion into a warm coat and bonnet."

"Next summer!" faltered Pierre, "then you will still see me, Meg—help me with the baby, perhaps? Ah! that would be a comfort."

Meg pulled the knitted cap over her dusky hair. "There are burdens and burdens," she remarked, "but when a man has one too many, why, then the woman who loves him must take it upon herself, and gladly to share them. I am going with you this morning, Pierre, kindly heart, to arrange with your mother to make the house habitable for your larger family."

Unluckiest Day

According to the old astrologers, December's unluckiest day is the thirty-first—the day on which Judas Iscariot is said to have been born.

We can't decide if it is better to be as wise as an owl by staying out all night or happy as a lark by getting up at daylight.

VISITORS BITE DUST IN CAGE GAME

Dickinson Completely Outclassed in Second Period of Brilliant Contest.

In a game that spectators declared was the best collegiate contest in the College gymnasium this season, the Gettysburg College basketball team ran rings around the Dickinson College quintet in the second period of their Wednesday evening set-to, defeating the Carlisle five by the score 32 to 15.

From a tie score of 11-all at half time, Gettysburg's passers jumped into the van and completely swamped the visitors in the second period, running up 21 points, while they held the Dickinsonians to four.

Dickinson came to Gettysburg in a spirit of over-confidence, Carlisle rosters said, having defeated the strong Washington College team at Carlisle last week, after that team decisively trimmed Gettysburg.

Gettysburg was at a disadvantage in the first period in being unable to penetrate Dickinson's five-man defense, but the second period saw the Orange and Blue passers batter down every semblance of defense the Dickinson quintet threw up. Gettysburg was in possession of the ball almost throughout the second period. When the visitors had the sphere, they were unable to penetrate Gettysburg's defense.

The Gettysburg squad never played with better teamwork than in Wednesday evening's fracas. When on the offensive, the five men were playing hand in hand and when compelled to take the defense every "mother's son" was a guard.

Gerhart, Gettysburg's tall, blonde tipoff man, was the individual star of the Gettysburg team, if such a man is judged by his playing and the score he turns in. Gerhart was over the floor like lightning, at once on the offense and defense, and chalked up a total of 13 points for his Alma Mater. While Gerhart probably was the individual star of the game, the other four men on the team deserve as much credit as he for the way in which they played. "Snaps" Emanuel's floorwork and footwork was as good as any he has exhibited this year, and he and Peduzzi made an excellent pair at forward.

"Junie" Bream, who is taking Barbour's place at guard, was responsible for the breaking up of many of would-be Dickinson field goals and was on the ball the second it bounded away from the basket. Fisher's work at guard was also the best

shown by the fast defense man this season. Wallace starred for Dickinson.

Following is the summary:
GETTYSBURG F..... H. Johnson
 Emanuel F..... P. Johnson
 Gerhart C..... Wallace
 Bream G..... Irwin
 Fisher G..... Kline
 Substitution: Schlossbach for P. Johnson. Field goals: Emanuel 2, Peduzzi 3, Gerhart 5, Fisher 4, H. Johnson 1, P. Johnson 1, Wallace 2. Foul goals: Peduzzi 1, Gerhart 3, P. Johnson 3, Wallace 3, Irwin 1. Referee, Earl Killinger.

AMERICAN STORES CO. AMERICAN
An Advance in Price of Asco Coffee and the Reason!
BROWN not only produces more than half of the coffee grown in the world, it also fixes the basis for the world's coffee prices. A large percentage of the coffee used in the United States comes from this great South American country.
Growing and harvesting conditions during the past season have been very unfavorable. Heavy rains, and bad weather generally, have destroyed crops. Naturally, the smaller the supply the greater the price which the Brazilian Government exacts. We reluctantly, therefore, are obliged to add two cents a pound to our retail price, although the actual import advance is more than twice that amount.
We are taking this step because we know our customers would prefer to pay a few cents more and be sure of the same high quality in ASCO Coffee than to have the quality lowered. Whatever the conditions, the quality of ASCO Coffee remains the same.
Even at 31c per lb., however, ASCO Coffee is a decided bargain, for other coffees of the same high grade are selling elsewhere at 40c, 45c & 50c lb.

AMERICAN STORES CO. AMERICAN

An Advance in Price of Asco Coffee and the Reason!

BRAZIL not only produces more than half of the coffee grown in the world, it also fixes the basis for the world's coffee prices. A large percentage of the coffee used in the United States comes from this great South American country.

Growing and harvesting conditions during the past season have been very unfavorable. Heavy rains, and bad weather generally, have destroyed crops. Naturally, the smaller the supply the greater the price which the Brazilian Government exacts. We reluctantly, therefore, are obliged to add two cents a pound to our retail price, although the actual import advance is more than twice that amount.

We are taking this step because we know our customers would prefer to pay a few cents more and be sure of the same high quality in ASCO Coffee than to have the quality lowered. Whatever the conditions, the quality of ASCO Coffee remains the same.

Even at 31c per lb., however, ASCO Coffee is a decided bargain, for other coffees of the same high grade are selling elsewhere at 40c, 45c & 50c lb.

If you have never tried the delicious ASCO blend, you have a real treat awaiting you.

THERE'S REAL MEDICINE NOW FOR STUBBORN HANG-ON COUGHS

When nothing seems to do that lingering, bothersome cough any good just go to People's Drug Store and get a bottle of Broncholine Emulsion. Take it as directed and notice how easily it overcomes that persistent cough that has caused you many sleepless nights. It's a medicine compounded for the purpose of conquering tough, hang-on coughs, and that's exactly what it does—quickly and thoroughly. There is no dope in Broncholine Emulsion, nor chloroform, nor sugar—such things are only makeshift and should be taken with the greatest caution. For ordinary simple coughs two or three doses of Broncholine Emulsion is usually enough.—adv.
